Women's rights around the world is an important indicator to understand global well-being. A major global women's rights treaty was ratified by the majority of the world's nations a few decades ago. As the world's only truly universal global organization, the United Nations has become the foremost forum to address issues that transcend national boundaries and cannot be resolved by any one ... Beef production is immensely wasteful in terms of energy, massive environmental degradation, and diverting good land and crops away from feeding people to feeding cattle. It is a massive sector, primarily to produce for unhealthy consumption, yet takes up so much of the world's resources. It used to be a luxury item but now is consumed regularly. Nearly 6,000 Colorado companies do business outside the United States. Most of them are small or medium-sized, not Fortune 1000 companies. Companies expand globally for a variety of reasons: new markets, lower production costs, less competition and to exploit economies of scale, to name a few.
